

Update on our changes to the Relationship Framework

Written on Thursday 15th February 2024

A few weeks ago we made changes to our Relationship Framework.

People working in arts charities and groups said they were really worried about what the changes to the Framework mean.

Over the last 2 days we have listened to what people have said about the changes.

People have said we have not written the changes clearly enough.

People are worried that artists will be stopped from doing some pieces of work if it will upset people.

This is not what we meant when we wrote the changes.

We are going to have a look at what we wrote.

We will see if we can make it clear that our changes are there to help organisations.

The changes will not stop artists and organisations from making artwork that may upset some people.

When we have made changes to the Framework we will put it online.

We will do this as quickly as we can.