

Our Relationship Framework has been updated

Written on Wednesday 28th

In January we made changes to our Relationship Framework.

The framework says how we will work together with an organisation. It says what we will do and what an organisation needs to do.

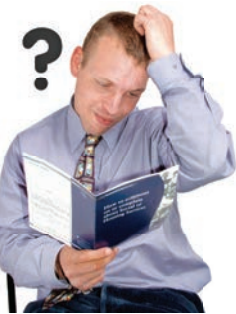

People working in arts charities and groups said they were really worried about what the changes to the framework mean.

People were worried that artists will be stopped from doing some pieces of work if it will upset people.

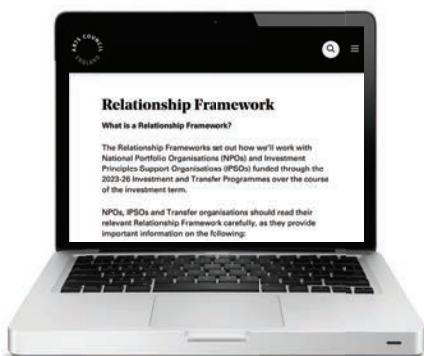

This is not what we meant when we wrote the changes.

People told us we have not written the changes clearly enough.

We have looked at the framework again and made some more changes. We hope these changes make things clearer.
